

T is given as an orthogonal projection. By definition, it is a projection, so $T^2 = T$ i.e. it's idempotent. Therefore, applying the transformation again as by $T(T(\vec{x}))$ will have the same result as applying it once. Thus,

$$T(T(\vec{x})) = T(\vec{x})$$